Mr. Barton, the Federal Premier, has arranged to leave Sydney on Monday next for Queensland. He will be accompanied by Mr. J. H. Keating, secretary of the Australian Natives' Association at Brisbane.

At a meeting of the Federal Executive held yesterday it was decided to name the writs for the Western Australian elections. The polling will take place on Friday, March 25, and the writs will be issued on Saturday, March 26. The writs will be placed on New South Wales, Mr. Barton himself will be Friday, March 20, and the same day will agree to for Victoria and Tasmania.

The State Treasurer (Sir William Lyne) presided at a meeting of the Federal Executive for religious associations, (see he was of opinion that Sunday ought to be more generally observed. He did not care to interfere to any great extent with marine sports, but he was in favour of the marine trading masts be stopped in the centre of the bay.

A report from Port Darwin states that considerable rains have fallen during the past few days (see tertiary), and some have been reported to have fallen at Adelaide. At Fall of some of the fire rashes has been reported since Saturday last.

Clifton Gardens. A banquet took place in the private dining room of the hotel, where the guests were seated at the chair, and the Minister for Works (Mr. O'Farrell) was amongst those present.

At last night's meeting of the Newcastle O.C. Council a report was received from the sanitary inspector, Mr. Lloyd, stating that 18 cases of typhoid fever had been reported, and that one case of scarlet fever had been reported during the past month.

A somewhat better tone was prevalent in the Newcastle market yesterday, and no improvement in the several gold-dragging ventures, and in Western Australia.

The collector of customs gives the exports of wheat for the month of Sydney during the week ending February 16 as 51,836 bushels. The exports of fish totalled 531 tons, and the imports 38 tons. The exports of wool amounted to 1,000 tons.

Business in Investment stocks in the Stock and Share market opened very quietly yesterday, with very little attention in prices.

Writing of the Java coal market, Messrs. J. Dudgeon and Co., of Batavia, in their annual report for 1900-1901, state that the coal trade in Java is of municipal management in a condition of severe isolation from each other. In most cases the separation is as complete as if the cities were located in different continents, and the consequence is that each one has to solve the problem for itself instead of enjoying the advantage of mutual assistance. Yet if we may judge from the remarks of Dr. Graham to the representative of this paper, there are several items of administration in the sister city from which it is possible for a Sydney Mayor or alderman to learn something. It is not u-

not expected to produce good results; but, however this may be, there is comfort for ourselves in Dr. Graham's prediction that before very long the cleanliness of the Sydney streets will equal that of the streets of Melbourne. Their keeping and construction are another matter. The Mayor considers that the Melbourne authorities make the question more a matter of scientific concern. They have a quantity of the refuse of the city, and a supply of bluestone is obtained at a trifling cost. In this we are deficient. Our supply is expensive, and the consequence is that a newcorder is able to say, as Lord Beauchamp did, that the surfaces of some of our best thoroughfares sometimes look as if they were being prepared to receive a crop of potatoes. It is worth noting, by the way, that Dr. Graham offers another explanation of what he noticed in Melbourne when he describes that city as being singularly free

This consideration and that respecting the efficiency of the council's officers go to the root of the matter. If we could reproduce the conditions here with all that they imply in the way of capable direction on the part of the Mayor and aldermen, the details that speak of bad or defective management would soon disappear. Municipal administration, as we have pointed out before, is largely a matter of detail, and the first step towards making administration effective is to discover where these details are wanting. Given an intelligent and vigorous Council and that part of the work would soon be done. Even as matters stand, and after crediting Melbourne so far as Dr. Graham has done, it still remains that the treatment of garbage there is defective and primitive.—

Anything more than this is necessary to get rid of Dr. Graham's system of sanitary system generally, on which Melbourne supremely does not trade itself. That for the S.

direction it will be time enough to consider the question of appropriating to the excise the hotel licenses and those paid for following licences and houses of amusement, because the custom in Melbourne.

GREAT BRITAIN'S COMMERCIAL RIVALS.

It has become a custom with publicists of certain schools to vie with each other in endeavouring to forecast the career of England during the century on which we have just entered. Most appear to think that the Empire has nearly reached its apogee of greatness and prosperity, and that if it is to maintain its position it must learn to take into stricter account the conditions of the competition on which other nations have entered. Speculations of this character have always fascinated over-mindful of the future, and it is not surprising that

States, and that the working of several factors, like the Russian and the Japanese, must make the whole problem more complex and far less calculable than that struggle for empire between England and France throughout the eighteenth century which terminated so decisively in our favour.

We have been constantly reminded of late by such public men as Lord Rosebery and Mr. Chamberlain, by commercial experts like Mr. Henry Birkenhead of Masefield, and by the author of "Made in Germany," besides many others, that there are certain of all competitors. But what to remember is that the competition have changed, that the genius of rival nations is at it as, and that there is such an interest in trade progress as well as politics.

FEDERAL POLLING DATES.

It is seen by some information in these columns this morning that the polling in the six States have been fixed for the following dates: New South Wales, Victoria, and Western Australia, Friday, the 20th inst.; New Zealand, the 22nd inst.; the 23rd inst. in the case of the Federal Government. The place on the following day, the 24th inst., is reserved for the election of the House of Representatives. The Senate will have to be fixed by the 25th inst.

The new Attorney-General is a man of little talent, but a man of great energy for eight years as a solicitor. For some time he was Queen's Advocate under Sir W. Macgregor, K.C.M.G., his position at Fiji Mr. Elliot will take up. He is a man of high position at the Law Office of the Windward Islands.

Land and Income Tax.—The attorney is again directed to take the last day on which the land tax for the year 1900 may be paid without penalty of 10 per cent of the amount so provided by the Act.

Overcoming the Dead.—Yesterday Hon. J. M. Creed, M.L.C., and Blackett, architect, had an interview with the Attorney-General to establish a temporary crematorium. Deacons' Street Cemetery, for the cremating the remains which might be sent at the end of the two months' period. The Attorney-General is engaged in interesting arguments in his proposal, and made the further suggestion that the remains should be

The Mail Steamer—The P. and O. Arcadia, which is timed to leave here in the first of the company's passenger boats, has been booked satisfactorily in its steaming space. Lady and Miss Manning will go to the Arcadia to Marseilles. Mrs. R. B. Death of Mr. Colin McKay Smith.—On Sunday last, at his late residence, Tinsui, Western, island of Hilo, Mr. Colin McKay Smith passed away at the age of 35 years, after an illness extending over 10 days. The deceased gentleman was many years ago manager of the Fidelity Assurance Company, and was well known in commercial circles in London. He subsequently he went to England and started business there, but when he was for many years identified with insurance business. He returned to Sydney, and during the past 10 years he was engaged in an accountancy work. During his stay in England he took a keen interest in politics, and though he never entered the Assembly he was closely associated with the public life of the colony. Mr. McKay leaves a wife and two children, a son and daughter. The funeral will take place this morning at half-past 9, and the interment will be made at Gore Hill Cemetery.

He will be in the Netherlands for 10 days, and will return to the Netherlands on the 29th. He will be in the Netherlands for 10 days, and will return to the Netherlands on the 29th.

ing amendments to the Bill that is to be submitted on vote, proportional representation, and the abolition of the national referendum for the abolition of the two Houses, abolition of veto. 2. The initiative. The people to have the right to vote upon all matters of importance. 3. The referendum. The Governor-General by the purchase of 87; Parliament to have the right to propose any matter by any method it deems advisable. 4. The right of appeal. All laws to be subject to recall in the event of a referendum. 5. The right of alteration. Alteration of Constitution to have the right to propose any matter by the initiative; the right to amend any law; the right to decide any alteration or amendment.

Mr. J. O. Monroy addressed the crowd. He was about to become politician, and the twentieth century was known as the socialist century. The whole of the land and the means of production should be owned by the people. The party of which he was the working class to become that they were a separate and that reason the workers should then they would bring about the accomplishment of the aims and in asking the workers to vote for the Senate which the party asked them to consider that it principles more than for man.

valorous duties, and said that they did not concern the working men. Specific duties constituted an honor, because if a duty of 3d per lb. was the same no matter whether it might be 10 or 15 cents per lb. or 3d. Therefore if raised from the custom at all, valorem duties simply as levied under the British clause in the tariff could neither fructify nor protect it; that clause compelled through the Custom-house, and protective in its incidence, were to be no revenue. It was exacted through the Custom-house in the form of the "color-duty,"

Mr. W. E. Holland, who also had recently said there was no politics in Australia; but the fact that the League were addressing workers was evidence to the contrary. There was in New South Wales, and that of it developed. The sooner the workers' intellectual and recognized political action created the surplus on which lived the sooner would the day of labour be reached. Unless the
